1) Explaining your book: Explanation of major conceptual points; are all points addressed; explain author's theme/hypothesis/purpose

2) Analysis and/or critique and/or placing the book in the context of the class: Does the review include sufficient amount of one or more of the above? Are the ideas well formed and supported by argument and/or facts?

3) Overall cohesion: does the paper "hold together"; is progression logical; do the points make sense; is it cogently written; does it flow well; it is clear why certain information is contained (and does the information advance either an understanding of the book or the student's analysis)?
